Will Induct New Pastor

Rev. John Geeson, M.A., B.D. will be inducted into the pastorate of the Knox United Church on Friday evening, July 5 at 8 o'clock. Rev. C. Rogers of Carstairs, president of the Red Deer presbytery, will act as chairman, and Rev. DeWhyte Smith of Red Deer will deliver the address.

Sunday School Picnic.

Knox United Church Sunday School picnic which was held on Wednesday of last week at the farm of Bruce Parker was most successful and enjoyable.

Cars left town at 2 p.m. and on arrival the kiddies, both big and little, had a wonderful time playing softball, racing, jumping and other games.

A basket picnic lunch was served, with lots of ice cream and lemonade. A happy bunch of kiddies returned home about 8 p.m.

Pretty Wedding.

Ferns, lilac, honeysuckle, gladioli and roses were used effectively as a setting for the ceremony, when the marriage of Florence May, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Reiber of Didsbury to Mr. William Morrow, only son of Mrs. Morrow and the late Mr. Morrow of Calgary was solemnized by Rev. H. J. Wood on Wednesday, July 3rd, 1935, the ceremony taking place in the Zion Evangelical Church, Didsbury.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charmingly dressed in white Chantilly lace over taffeta and gowned on princess lines. Her long veil of embroidered net hung in filmy folds from a coronet of orange-blossoms. She carried a bridal bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses, her only other adornment being a necklace of pearls.

Miss Jessie Morrow, sister of the groom, as bridesmaid, was dressed in a frock designed in pastel blue chiffon-organzie, with tight bodice and jacket with frilled collar. She wore a delicate pink picture hat and carried a nosegay of pink sweetpeas with pink ribbon streamers. The groom was attended by Mr. Clarence Reiber, brother of the bride, while Mr. J. Tuggle and Mr. Leonard Berscht were ushers.

Preceding the procession was little Miss Liza Wood, sweetly dressed in yellow organdie, who as flower-girl, scattered rose petals along the aisle.

Wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Jack Pearson, organist, and Miss Evelyn Liesemer, cellist, both Mendelssohn's and Lohengrin's wedding marches being played. During the signing of the register Mrs. H. J. Wood sang the solo, "Until."

The groom's gift to the bride was a sterling silver dresser set; to the bridesmaid a mesh bag, and to the best man a signet ring.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where the rooms were beautifully decorated with peonies and roses in a color scheme of pink and white. The three-tiered wedding cake and pink tapers in silver sconces embedded in smilax graced the table, at which Mrs. J. V. Berscht and Mrs. H. E. Liesemer, of Carstairs, presided. Mrs. W. G. Liesemer, Didsbury, and Mrs. S. Reiber, Olds, cut the ices, while those serving were Mrs. H. C. Liesemer, Mrs. Russell Berscht, Mrs. Howard Halliday, Mrs. Bert Fisher, Miss Evelyn Liesemer, Miss Ruth Liesemer, Miss Wynne Studer, Miss Wilma Liesemer and Miss Donna Liesemer.

Receiving the guests was the bride's mother gowned in black crepe with elbow lace cape and matching hat. She wore a corsage of Madame Butterfly roses. Assisting Mrs. Reiber was Mrs. Morrow, mother of the groom. Mrs. Morrow was gowned in black crepe trimmed with satin. She wore a hat to match and a corsage of deep red roses.

Following the reception the happy couple left by car to spend their honeymoon at Banff and other mountain resorts, and upon their return will take up residence at Lethbridge.

BORN.

June 25, to Mr. and Mrs. Nyle Hunsperger, a son, Kenneth John.

Mr. and Mrs. Boorman and family motored to Lacombe for the holidays.

Presentation from Knox United Choir.

A farewell party was given by the Knox United Church to Miss Alice Pearson at the Ranton home on Wednesday evening last.

Mr. J. Boorman, choir-leader, presented Miss Pearson, who has been a member of the choir a number of years, with a steamer rug as a farewell gift.

Miss Pearson leaves Monday next by motor for Vancouver, enroute for Australia.

New Diesel Tractors.

Henry Goehring informs us that the International Harvester Co. have just released the prices of their new Wheel-Type Diesel Tractors.

This is the first Diesel Wheel-type tractor put on the market for agricultural purposes and they will be exhibited at the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede next week.

Obituary.

Mrs. D. GEIGER.

Margaret Geiger, the wife of Daniel Geiger, passed away in a hospital at Calgary on Thursday, June 27th, after an illness of several months.

The funeral service was held at the Knox United Church on Saturday with Rev. F. E. H. James of Olds taking the services. The interment took place at the Didsbury cemetery.

Margaret Geiger, who was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mortimer, was born at Harriston, Ont., on Aug. 19th, 1889. In 1894, at the age of five years, she came to Calgary with her parents and in 1903 moved to Didsbury. She was married to Daniel Geiger at Didsbury on December 25th, 1906, and they have resided in Didsbury since that time. Seven children were born of the union, six of which are living.

She is survived by her husband; father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Mortimer; four sons, Orville of Calgary, Wallace, George and Charlie, Didsbury; two daughters, Mrs. Albert Meston, Lacombe, and Deane at home; three brothers, George Mortimer of Mirror, Alta., Charles and Clifford Mortimer of Didsbury; and three sisters, Mrs. A. Cluny and Mrs. E. Meikle of Vancouver, and Mrs. Pearl Miller, Langdon.

HOW TO MAKE ICED TEA

Infuse six heaping teaspoons of Salada Black Tea in a pint of fresh boiling water. After six minutes strain liquid into two-quart container. While hot, add 1½ cups of granulated sugar and the juice of 2 lemons. Stir well until sugar is dissolved; fill container with cold water. Do not allow tea to cool before adding the cold water; otherwise liquid will become cloudy. Serve with chipped ice.

Funerals Without Flowers

Within recent months the writer has attended a number of funerals, joining with other friends and loved ones in paying respect to a deceased friend. Some of these funeral services have been held quietly and simply in the home, with only a few of the nearest relatives and closest friends of the departed one present; others have been held in churches in order that the larger circle of the deceased's friends and associates in his or her life's activities might be present, or where the religious tenets of the departed might be properly observed. In one case just a few persons were present, people who had voluntarily made small contributions to prevent the remains of the one who had passed on from being consigned to the potter's field.

In the vast majority of cases there were flowers in profusion, wreaths, emblems, sprays, dozens and scores of them, representing an expenditure of many dollars. And the thought constantly protruded itself whether such lavish display of floral tokens was right, in good taste, even in keeping with our Christian beliefs. It could not be questioned that in many, probably most, instances these flowers were sent out of love or a sincere respect for the deceased. Equally true, no doubt, in numerous instances flowers were sent because it has become the custom to send them.

As a matter of fact, as in the case of weddings, the tendency seems to be in the direction of making funerals more and more elaborate, more expensive, more and more something of a spectacle. The quiet and simplicity in funerals of former days has largely passed, until now it has become a source of heavy expense and consequent worry to people who are not blessed with an over-abundance of this world's goods. Yet because of prevailing custom, nobody wishes to appear mean in the eyes of others when called upon to discharge the last duty to a loved one.

Many people think of these things, believe present customs are wrong, but seldom openly express themselves. In a recent spirited article entitled "Decent Christian Burial", Marian J. Castle attacked the extravagance attending funerals. She showed how sums spent on flowers, tombstones, pomp and ceremony, often impoverish the living families of the deceased. She wisely inferred that the dead might be happier if the funds showered upon their inanimate bodies were used instead to brighten the lot of the living.

Discussing this same subject, Alma Hedin, sister of Sven Hedin, the famous Swedish explorer, says it is in the spirit of the times in her country to seek the simplest and at the same time the most dignified memorial for those we have loved. She outlines various steps taken in this direction, including the provision of funeral insurance through the agency of a society, which takes charge of all funeral arrangements, which are the same for every individual. Payment can be made to the society at any time during the lifetime of the insured, the premium being smaller for the young than for the old. The highest premium is paid by those who are over 70, and is about $75 in all. This provides for a dignified funeral of a kind that might otherwise tax the resources of the bereaved family, especially when the deceased happen to be the breadwinner.

In Sweden, too, they have had since 1921 an organization called the Flower Fund, formed to honor the dead "in a more worthy and more lasting manner" than with ornate floral tributes for the bier. Instead of sending an expensive wreath, the friends of the deceased remit the money to the Flower Fund, which sends to the bereaved family a simple memorial message in the name of the giver. The amount contributed remains a confidence between the donor and the Fund.

It was decided that the money received in this way should be applied to obtaining houses with small apartments for old people in straitened circumstances. When three and a half years had passed, the Flower Fund erected a large building on a site donated by the city of Stockholm. Soon a second house rose by the side of the first, and before long six additional houses were built. By this means the Fund provides for more than a thousand old people. These pay a lower rent than they would pay elsewhere and receive care if they are ill. Otherwise they are quite free, and there is nothing institutional about the place. It is like a private home.

There is a restaurant in each building where residents can buy lunch or dinner for a quarter of a dollar. They may have meals sent to their rooms or prepare them in the small kitchen that accompanies each apartment. Food can be purchased in the building, and there is also a laundry and a bakery. The old people seem to be happy under these arrangements, for there are always more applications than can be filled.

Swedish death notices often contain a line asking that the Flower Fund be remembered. Sometimes another charity is named, for the example is contagious. The important thing is not that the money is donated to a single cause but that the memorial be given a form that will honor the dead by benefiting the living.

Does this Swedish idea not offer a suggestion to the people of other countries? Can we not make our tributes to our deceased loved ones something more lasting than quickly withered blossoms?

Perished In The Desert

Bodies Of Man And Woman Found On Scorching Sands Of Sahara

A searching party found the bodies of an Englishwoman and an Englishman on the scorching Sahara sands recently and rescued two Frenchmen near death from thirst.

The woman, Mrs. Knight, widow of an English aviator who committed suicide recently at Agadez, French West Africa, had slashed her wrist apparently in an attempt to end her torture from thirst and heat.

A party of four—Mrs. Knight, Peyton, an English resident of Switzerland, and two Frenchmen, Kneebret and Chavexus—left Agadez by truck May 22 for Tamanrasset, Tawarek. After the quartette were missing four days a searching party left Agadez for them. It found the Frenchmen in a serious condition beside the truck near a dried-up river bed.

WHY HIS HEADACHES CEASED

Wife Put Kruschen in His Coffee

He could not understand why the headaches he had been subject to suddenly ceased. His wife told him, and he at once sat down and wrote the following letter:

"I am 62 years of age, and ever since I was a boy of ten years, I was subject to very bad headaches. But two years ago the headaches stopped—for what reason I did not know. I was surprised when one day my wife told me I had been using Kruschen Salts in my coffee for over two years. I am still using them, as I know of nothing finer for the system."

Headaches can nearly always be traced to a disordered stomach, and to the unsuspected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them forming again—and you'll never have to worry any more. And that is just how Kruschen Salts brings swift and lasting relief from headaches. Kruschen Salts aid Nature to cleanse your body completely of all clogging waste matter.

The Nagoya Railway Bureau of Japan is to start a "pigeon section" at an estimated cost of nearly $1,000. The plan is to provide an auxiliary system of communication which will be called into service when all other means have been destroyed.

Remedy Is Elusive

Medical World Endeavors To Discover Virus For Treating Common Colds

There is a virus that has something to do with the common cold and that's what so far has eluded the medical world. When it is discovered what that virus is, then the cold may be squelched.

"The germs of the common cold are well known," Dr. E. C. Sewall, of San Francisco, told the convention of the American Laryngological Association in Toronto, "although I believe there is a virus which is not yet known. This virus, in my opinion, is the product of all these germs that go to cause the common cold."

Persons who suffer from frequent colds are probably suffering from the same cold all the time, he said. He said a cold creates an immunity of six months or so.

"This," he said, "is probably the reason for the endemic source of colds. These people carry the source of infection in chronic sinus trouble and spread infection to other people."

Long Service Medal

Old Member Of Mounted Police Receives Official Recognition

An official recognition of his long service with the Northwest Mounted Police in the west's early days came to special Constable ("Gentleman Joe") McKay at Prince Albert when he was presented with the long service medal.

Forwarded from headquarters of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Ottawa, the medal was presented to Mr. McKay by Inspector F. W. Schutz, officer commanding this subdivision. Mr. McKay retired many years ago.

"Gentleman Joe" is said to have fired the first shot in the Riel rebellion, 50 years ago at the Duck Lake fight.

Ruling Is Clarified

Naturalized Germans In Canada Exempt From Military Service In Homeland

German residents in the Dominion are exempt from compulsory military service in their homeland, according to an official declaration from Berlin which gives an interpretation of Chancellor Hitler's recent speech in the Reichstag, in which he dealt with military service. It states that Germans who are naturalized or have made their permanent homes in foreign countries will not be compelled to return to Germany to serve in the army.

Officers To Retire

Three Assistant Commissioners Of R.C.M.P. To Retire On January 1st Next

Royal Canadian Mounted Police announced impending retirement of three assistant commissioners, A. J. Cawdron of Ottawa, C. Junget of Halifax and J. W. Phillips of Vancouver. They will be granted leave from July 1 and retired next Jan. 1.

Assistant Commissioner Junget was engaged in the North West Mounted Police in 1899 and passed through the non-commissioned ranks until he was appointed inspector in 1907. He became superintendent in 1922 and assistant commissioner in 1932. He is now officer commanding "H" division at Halifax.

Assistant Commissioner Phillips, officer commanding "E" division at Vancouver, joined the North West Mounted Police in 1898 and passed through the non-commissioned ranks. He was appointed inspector in 1913, superintendent in 1931 and assistant commissioner in 1934.

Would Abolish Military Aviation

Londoners Vote For Limitation Of Armaments

Universal abolition of military aviation and limitation of armaments were favored by an overwhelming majority in a straw-vote conducted by the League of Nations union in Greater London, the union announced.

On these questions and on the question of supporting the league and forbidding the manufacture of arms for profit, the vote favored the proposals by 1,400,000 to 100,000.

Londoners voted 1,375,061 to 88,521 for use of economic sanctions against an aggressor, whatever the nation might be, and 872,275 to 386,664 for use of military sanctions if they were found necessary.

Young Lambs Make Trip

Long Jaunt Did Not Appear To Harm Them

Young lambs are good "trailers". Recently the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, moved its ewe flock to summer pasture at Beaver Creek and the ewes, with lambs at foot, made 10 miles the first day and completed the journey easily the second. Some of these lambs were no more than four days old.

"The long jaunt did not appear to hurt the lambs a bit," said Dean A. M. Shaw, "and after their 10 mile trip they were fresh and perky. Of course, the weather was cool, but the observation is of particular interest to ranchers and B.C. sheepmen when moving their stock from winter to summer range."

ALL FOOD MADE HER ILL

Caused by Acidity — Corrected by Kruschen

"It is only fair to pass these facts on," writes a nurse. "I was suffering from over-acidity and flatulence to such an extent that I was completely ill. I couldn't take food. When I actually forced myself to take something, I would be wretchedly ill. I have now taken Kruschen for 12 months, and I have no doubt that it has righted my digestive system. I am now quite fit and able to work with vigor again."—Nurse E. S.

Indigestion is caused by a failure in the flow of the gastric or digestive juices. As a result, your food, instead of being assimilated by your system, simply collects and ferments inside you, producing harmful acid poisons. The immediate effect of the six mineral salts in Kruschen is to promote the healthy flow of the vital juices of the body. As you continue with the "little daily dose," it ensures the regular and complete elimination of all waste matter every day. And that means a complete end to indigestion.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

Now Go On With The Story

There were also plans to make for Aunt Judy, who was to sail in a fortnight. The air was filled with a subtle confusion and unrest. And then one late afternoon, returning from a tea to which her mother had urged the girl to go, Nancy spied a telegram on the hall table. It was addressed to Jack, but she grasped the envelope eagerly, her heart pounding as she tore it open. A dim hope that Cousin Columbine would wet-blanket the whole idea, swept through her, but the message, eccentric and to the point, read briefly:

YOUR LETTER SHOWS YOU TO BE A TRUE NELSON STOP CAN GET JOB ON RANCH THREE MILES FROM HERE STOP SORRY TO HEAR OF YOUR FATHER'S REVERSES STOP IF NOTIFIED WILL SEND CHECK TO COVER EXPENSE OF TRIP FOR BOTH OF YOU STOP ADVISE COME AS SOON AS POSSIBLE—COLUMBINE NELSON.

Nancy read this twice, her hands gripping the paper tensely. She was still staring at what seemed an irrevocable sentence at hard labor, when her father entered the room so quietly that she had no chance to conceal the tell-tale yellow message. He asked, a touch of alarm in his voice: "What's happened?"

She glanced up, forcing a smile of reassurance.

"Nothing to worry about. It's a telegram for Jack. No bad news, Daddy."

"Let's see, daughter."

He stretched out a hand, but Nancy thrust the paper into her coat pocket.

WHEN YOUR DAUGHTER COMES TO WOMANHOOD

Most girls in their teens need a tonic and regulator. Give your daughter Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the next few months. Teach her how to guard her health at this critical time. When she is a happy, healthy wife and mother she will thank you.

Sold at all good drug stores.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"No," she said, "you'll have to wait till Jack comes home and tells you. He took Aunt Judy over to the Spears' on some last errand."

She moved away, his eyes following her, puzzled.

"But who's it from, Nancy?" The girl laughed.

"You're just as curious as an old woman, Dad; but I promised not to tell, and I'm not going to. You won't have long to wait. It's almost dinner time. Here's Aunt Louise."

She darted off before he could question any further, but as she reached her room a voice recalled her, and Jack, who had come in close on his aunt's heels, was up the stairs.

"Hi there! Dad says I've got a telegram. What luck?"

Nancy held it out, watching him read it. The boy drew a deep breath of relief.

"Good! That's settled then."

"It's not if Dad objects, or—Mother."

She couldn't keep the shamed hope out of her voice, and catching its meaning Jack said scornfully: "Don't be a slacker, Sis. Come down and see how they all react. Every one's there, even the kiddie. We'll take a vote. Buck up, Nancy. It's a pity if you can't help out when all the rest of us are trying to."

That hurt. Nancy turned away to hide the tears which sprang into her eyes. A slacker! Well, she'd show him! If only she wasn't so beastly scared at the idea.

"Be down in a second," she said as her brother made an impatient gesture; and then added angrily: "And don't you call me any names before the others!"

"Oh, see here!" He followed her into the room, closing the door. "I didn't mean anything, Sis, honest. I was only afraid they'd see how much you hate to go, and put their feet down. Come on now. Let's get it over before dinner."

The family's rebellion was very nearly unanimous.

Said Dad: "If you must have jobs, both of you, surely we can find something nearer home."

Said Aunt Louise: "You're too young and impressionable, Jack, to spend six months or so in rough surroundings; and Nancy would die of boredom if of nothing worse. What put such a wild idea into your head?"

"He was only trying to help," defended Aunt Judy with her unswerving loyalty, "but Colorado is terribly far away, Jack. I'd worry my head off." While Phil, the ten-year-old, exclaimed excitedly:

"Gee! folks, I'd like to be a cowboy! Just think of quitting school and staying outdoors all day!"

And strangely, this innocent remark of her younger son was what stopped the protest on Margaret Nelson's lips. In a flash she remembered that not many months ago the family doctor had said of Jack: "If that boy were mine I'd let him forget school for a year or two and live outdoors. A job on a farm would be worth considerably more to him than a diploma."

Yet because Jack seemed reasonably well this good advice had not been taken very seriously. But now, looking up at the five-foot-eleven-inches of too-thin boyhood, those warning words came back, and to the complete surprise of everybody, Mother said: "It would be a splendid thing for Jack—an outdoor winter in a milder climate; but—"

"You're not implying," broke in her husband, "that you'd let those children go off there all by themselves?"

"Children!" This exasperated exclamation came from Jack. "I'll say if Nancy is old enough to be launched in society with a big splurge, she's old enough to be away from home for a few months—with a relative too. As for me, Dad, you bet I'll have to do a man's work or lose the job. Why, I'll be eighteen on—well, on my next birthday."

Since his previous birthday was only six weeks back, this brought a laugh. Then Aunt Judy said: "And what does Nancy think of all these plans?"

The girl hesitated. All eyes had turned upon her; but glancing up she saw only her brother's, and responded gamely: "It would be something new, wouldn't it? And it

More than that of any other member of the family, baby's tender, delicate skin needs the greatest care and attention. The soft, soothing oils in Baby's Own Soap make it specially suitable for babies, and its clinging fragrance reminds one of the roses of France which help to inspire it.

"It's best for you and Baby too" 27-28 couldn't be very much duller than Edgemere."

"But, Nancy!" protested her father in distress, "you'd be living with an old lady, one you've never seen and who we've reason to believe eccentric. And if she paid your fare you'd be in duty bound to stick it out a while, no matter what you found."

"But I'd be earning my living," she retorted, wondering why she was arguing on the wrong side, and what had got into her. Why, in fact, didn't she tell them the whole truth—that she was frightened stiff at the prospect—would almost rather die than spend a winter with Cousin Columbine, but was ashamed to admit it before Jack?

"Well," declared Aunt Louise, "it's the most extraordinary plan I ever heard of. And from Nancy! As I said before, what put such an idea into your heads?"

"Circumstances, of course," spoke up Aunt Judy. "They want to help through the hard sledding; and I think they're splendid. But how could we let you go so far from home, dears? You might be sick."

There followed a silence before Mother said: "I'm not in favor of this move—yet; but I'll have to admit that according to Doctor Strong Jack's more likely to be sick if he stays in school." She went on to tell them of the doctor's chance remark, and added: "I thought at the time that he was over cautious, Jack seemed so well; but the boy has grown appallingly, and I dare say life in the open air would build him up if he didn't have to work too hard."

Aunt Judith sank back and stared at her sister.

"I'd never have expected that—from you, Margaret. But if you ask me, Nancy will expire of loneliness in about one month. What will she do with no young friends to run around with, and Jack three miles off on a ranch?"

The boy laughed.

"You talk as if the population of Pine Ridge was made up of inhabitants over seventy, Aunt Judy! Didn't Cousin Columbine mention a postmaster's daughter? And of course there are others. Who knows but Nancy will find her—her affinity or whatever they call it, out in the big wild West!"

"Affinity!" sniffed Aunt Louise. "Where did you pick up that nonsense? And it's far more probable that what she'll find is a devastating attack of homesickness, young man."

"Well," Jack retorted, "that's nothing fatal."

"It might as well be," observed his father. "I remember spending a summer at my grandmother's farm when I was twelve. I expected a real lark, but—homesick! Well, I warn you kids that homesickness is no light matter."

"I s'pose you'll be riding horseback all day long," spoke up the little brother enviously. "I wouldn't think of being homesick if I had a horse, Daddy. Will you wear a four-gallon hat, Jack? And leather chaps with fringe all down your legs like they do in the movies? Gee! I wish I was going too!"

"We don't know yet whether anybody's going sonny," returned his father. "Where's Cousin Columbine's letter, Margaret? Let's make sure what is expected of our Nance."

There ensued a fruitless search for the long epistle; but Mother said: "I remember those duties pretty well, Jim. Nance was to dust the 'mansion' every morning, get supper Thursdays, sew, read the paper aloud, get to bed by nine-thirty—"

"And abstain from the boy friend," chuckled Jack. "I admit that last is a big order—for Nance."

"A lot you know if you think I'd run around with those country pumpkins," replied his sister. "Would any fellows who could help themselves stay in a back-woods place like that? And I've no interest in the other sort, so Cousin Columbine needn't worry about those young men callers she mentioned. And you needn't either," Nance told her mother with a smile.

"I s'pose you'll see Pike's Peak," observed the small boy thoughtfully. "It rises fourteen thousand feet above the plains, and was sighted by Zebulon Pike in November 1806 when with fifteen soldiers he climbed to the summit of Cheyenne Mountain and—"

"You see," broke in Jack, grinning, "that's the boy who ought to go to Harvard! Imagine me reciting whole pages out of history, Dad! Why in—"

He stopped abruptly because the curtains at the door had parted and a maid announced: "Dinner is served, Mrs. Nelson. And," (she came forward, extending a silver tray on which was lying a yellow envelope), "here is another telegram for Mr. Jack."

CHAPTER IV.

Jack took the telegram, staring at it for a surprised moment. Then Phil cried out impatiently: "Why don't you read it? I bet you anything that Cousin Woodbine has changed her mind."

"Woodbine!" Jack shouted, while even Dad forgot his worries in amusement at the little boy's mistake. "The lady's name is Columbine, you crazy kid, and," (tearing open the envelope), "she says:

ADVISE BRINGING PLENTY OF HEAVY UNDERWEAR AND FLANNEL NIGHTGOWNS FOR NANCY STOP NIGHTS AND EARLY MORNINGS APT TO BE COLD. COLUMBINE NELSON."

"I'd give a lot to see Nancy in a flannel nightgown," observed Phil dryly. "Mrs. Grant had one on the night I slept over at Tim's house, and she came in to give him some medicine. It made her look like an old lady. I bet Nance wouldn't be found dead in one, or Mother either. Come on. Let's eat."

Dad was still smiling as they moved towards the dining room; but once seated, he looked across at Mother and his eyes clouded. Both were thinking that this would be the last well-served dinner in the old home. Two maids were leaving next day; and only the cook was to remain until the city house was closed.

Remembering this fact, Aunt Judy had stopped at a florist's on her way home, and a dozen jonquills nodded

1,000 PAIRS OF MONARCH DEBUTANTE SILK STOCKINGS Free!

Go to your druggist or department store and buy RIT Dye (any color, 15c—2 for 25c). Use it. Then tell us in a statement of 50 words or less, why you prefer RIT—1,000 pairs of Monarch Debutante full-fashioned—shadow-free pure silk chifon stockings—latest Spring shades—guaranteed $1.00 value—will be given as prizes to 1,000 entrants. There are dozens of reasons why you will prefer RIT. RIT comes in 33 basic brilliant colors, from which can be produced over 50 of the newest Paris shades.

FAST COLORS WITHOUT BOILING! Only RIT offers this advantage! RIT is the modern tint or dye—easier and surer—far superior to ordinary "surface dyes" because it contains a patented ingredient that makes the color soak in deeper, set faster and last longer. Sold everywhere.

HOW TO WIN
1. Write a short statement (under 50 words) on why you prefer RIT Dyes and send it together with an empty RIT package (or reasonable facsimile) and your name and address, to John A. Huston Co. Ltd., 42 Caledonia Rd., Toronto.
2. Send as many as you wish; contest closes midnight June 29, 1935.
3. 1,000 prizes will be awarded on the decision of the judges, which will be final. Whether you win a pair of silk stockings or not, we will mail to all entrants free of charge, our famous booklet—"The A.B.C. of Home Rug Making."

NOT A SOAP!

gaily from the centre of the table. Aunt Louise, eyeing them with disapproval, started to say something about "foolish extravagance," and then held her tongue. After all, she thought with extraordinary tact, if Judy wanted to spend money for something perishable in these hard times, it was her own business.

So Judith Hale's "extravagance" (the last she was to indulge in for many months), remained uncensored, adding a note of cheer to that dinner table, as she meant it to; yet as the moments passed Mother kept thinking sadly of how soon they would all be scattered—separated. She, Dad, and the little boy at Edgemere—Judith in Europe—Louise alone in a city boarding house—Jack and Nancy.

This last she refused to face just then, and said when Jack resumed the subject: "Oh, let's forget it, dear, while we eat dinner."

"But we've got to decide, Mother," he persisted with impatience. "I dare say Cousin Columbine's expecting a telegram to-night."

"Never mind," put in his father. "It won't hurt the old lady to wait for a message until tomorrow. But we'll decide the question this evening, Jack. I promise you. After all, it's as easy to face things now as later."

Slot Machines Illegal From Monday, July 1

Dominion Day in Alberta this year will definitely bring to an end the long and profitable career of the devices commonly known as "Slot Machines."

From that day forward these machines will be distinctly taboo by law and liable to confiscation wherever they are found illegally existing.

Slot machines are ruled out by the new act passed at the recent session of the legislature, which comes into force the first of July, according to an announcement by Hon. J. F.
Lymburn, Attorney-General. The act prohibits the keeping of these machines and enables any peace-officer to seize, without warrant, any machine he finds on any public premises where he believes such machines may be kept.

The definition of "Slot Machine" in the act is wide enough to cover pin-ball machines, baseball, golf and whiffle machines, and in fact any machine the result of any number of operations of which is a matter of chance and is capable of being used for gambling purposes.

Bowden Pair Presented With Triplets.

The Misses Michael are occupying the attention of the myriad attendants, nurses and physicians of the Calgary General Hospital.

The Misses Michael are sisters - three of them. They were born Saturday to 28-year-old Mrs. Stanley Michael, of Bowden. Mother and triplets are doing well.

The triplets arrived while the parents were on a visit to the city.
Mrs. Michael was rushed to the hospital early Saturday morning, and at 10:30 o'clock, Dr. R. R.
Hughes brought the first of the tiny mites into the world. At 5:45 p.m., the second of the baby girls was born, and 15 minutes later, the third.

Total weight of the babies is 12 pounds, 14 and one-half ounces.
Their respective weights are: 4 pounds, 2½ ounces; 4 pounds, 4½ ounces; 4 pounds, 7½ ounces.

The Michaels have four other children, three boys and a girl. Dr.
Hughes stated Monday evening that mother and triplets are doing fine, and he expected a normal life for each of the babies. (Albertan).

Mr. and Mrs. Michael were residents of Didsbury about 5 years ago, Mr. Michael having a position at Studer's store.

WEDDINGS

KREBS - KYNCL

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs.
August Krebs on Thursday, June 27
1935, when Miss Lillian Kyncl, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Kyncl, Elkton, became the bride of Mr. Eddie Krebs, eldest son of Mr.
and Mrs. August Krebs. The ceremony was performed under a beautiful arch by Rev. F. H. James of Olds.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a dainty white dress with veil and wreath, and carried a bouquet of white lilacs. Mrs. Harold Bliss, sister of the groom, and dressed in pale green, attended the bride. Little Jean Krebs, dressed in yellow, was flower girl, while little Leonard Cowitz was ring bearer, and Frank Kyncl, brother of the bride, acted as groomsmen. During the signing of the register, Miss Bessie Evans sweetly sang, "I Love You Truly."
The wedding march was played by Miss Edith Mann.

Immediately following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served to about 80 guests. In the evening about 300 guests attended a reception.

The bridal couple are spending their honeymoon in Banff, and on their return will reside on the groom's farm west of Didsbury.

Doings Of Our Neighbors.

At INNISFAIR: Included in the supplementary estimates submitted to the House of Commons this week is an item of $4,000 for the purchase of the Canadian Bank of Commerce building, Innisfail, for a post office.

G. W. West is celebrating his 44th anniversary of business in Innisfail.

At OLDS: Nothing more than a few things turned topsy-turvy was the damage done at the local creamery by marauders who entered the building during the dark hours of Sunday night and Monday morning of last week. Entrance was made by prying a window, which was found open, with footprints beneath the window.

TENDERS WANTED.

Tenders will be received by the undersigned until Saturday, July 13 for:

Mountain View Notes

The local W. I. assembled at Community Hall on Thursday last to hold their monthly meeting. As usual the meeting opened by the singing of "O Canada," followed by the repetition of the creed.

Arrangements were made to hold a picnic for members at the home of Mrs. Hosegood on July 18th, the regular meeting day. Members are requested to be at Community Hall at 1 P.M. on that day.

Following the business session, an excellent paper on "Education and Better Schools" was read by Mrs. Bennie St. Clair, after which refreshments were served.

Mrs. Ernie St. Clair donated a beautiful cake which was raffled; Mrs. J. Worrall being the winner of it.

Several members and friends of the W. I. gave a farewell party to Miss D. Brown who taught the Mona School for a period of five years, during which time she made a large number of friends. She was presented with a gift as token of esteem. The presentation was made by Mr. Max Woods and Miss Brown suitably replied. The school board and parents too regretted her departure, and presented her with a club bag for her services.

Pretty Wedding at Vancouver

Crosby United Church, Vancouver was the scene of a pretty wedding Wednesday evening, June 26, early summer flowers forming a fitting background, when Miss Margaret Howe, the second daughter of Mrs.
Howe and the late A. G. Howe, became the bride of Mr. William Osborne, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Osborne. Rev. J. C.
Switzer officiated.

Given in marriage by her mother and escorted by her cousin, Mr.
J. B. Taylor, the bride looked beautiful in a wedding gown of white triple georgette, fashioned with flounces and a slight train, and featuring a high neckline with small collar covering white organdie flowers. Miss May White was maid-of-honor, and Mr. Robert Osborne supported the groom.

Later a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, 2228
Yew Street. The bridal party received under an arch of flowers centred with a wedding bell.

Mr. and Mrs. Osborne left on a motor trip to California and on their return will reside in Kitsilano.

The bride, together with her parents, was a former resident of Didsbury and district and was educated at the Didsbury schools. They have many relatives in the community.

Will Build New Church.

The building of a new Moravian Church 12 miles west of town on the blind line has been commenced.

The building will be 26x36 and will be erected by the supporters of the church. It is expected that the building will be completed in about one month.

Messrs. J. R. Luft and T. Raedke are trustees of the church.

"Kritiks' Korner."

A number of streets have been greatly improved by grading and graveling. There are still others that need attention, and which will no doubt be taken care of in due time. Something should be done to Main Street to level off the bumps.

The time to cut weeds is before they go to seed. Roadsides and vacant lots should be mowed and cleaned up now.

This is also a good time of year to paint and brighten up your buildings. Some places have been refreshed with a good coat of paint - others greatly need it.

Oil Production.

Oil production in Alberta to the end of May was 417,109 barrels, as compared with 547,282 barrels for the first five months of 1934.

Child Labor

In Canada, and in the western provinces particularly, as in many other agricultural countries, laws are enacted and regulations made under those laws from the operation of which the industry of agriculture and those engaged in it are exempted. For example, legislation regulating hours of labor in industry cannot well be made applicable to agriculture, although there are some idealists who, shutting their eyes to practical conditions, urge that such laws could and should be applied and enforced on the farms as well as in the factories. Workmen's Compensation Acts, passed for the protection of urban workers, are in many respects not applicable throughout the rural sections.

As we proceed to write this article, daily newspapers lie on the desk telling of the complete wreckage of the N.R.A. codes governing industry and business generally throughout the United States as a result of a decision of the Supreme Court declaring such legislation unconstitutional, being beyond the powers of Congress to enact inasmuch as it encroaches upon and usurps the constitutional rights and powers of the individual States of the Union.

Whatever varying and opposing opinions people may entertain regarding the Roosevelt experiment as a whole, there has been general approval of the provisions in the N.R.A. codes prohibiting child labor in shops and factories. It has been estimated that an army of at least 100,000 children marched out of shops and factories with the establishment of these codes, and there was a widespread belief that thereby the increasing problem of child labor had been solved for the time being at least. Now the protection afforded these children has been destroyed, although it may be hoped that those in control of industry will not revert to the employment of child labor.

Unfortunately, industry accounted for only a small proportion of the 700,000 children under 16 who were listed as working at the time the U.S. census of 1930 was taken. By far the greatest number, almost half a million, were found in the ranks of agriculture, to which the codes did not apply. It has been pointed out that the cotton fields, tobacco fields, truck gardens, beet fields, onion fields, potato fields, cranberry bogs, berry farms, hop fields and orchards with each returning season make their demands upon the nation's children, and that to hundreds of thousands of boys and girls, many as young as six, the coming of the end of school sessions means not the beginning of a holiday time of freedom and play but a period of toil that often starts at sunrise and ends at sundown.

Except for the fact that these children work in the open air, their lot is in many respects a harder one than those children in shops and factories, and one can appreciate the yearning expressed by one 12-year-old boy for the day when he will be old enough to get a job in a mill and work only eight hours a day.

The situation in Canada is, of course, not comparable to that in the United States, or in other lands where congested populations eke out an existence and intensive tillage of the land by the whole family is necessary. Furthermore, in Canada our standard of living and of education is much higher than in most countries, and in the cotton, tobacco and other fields of the southern States. Canadian parents, as a rule, are more desirous of giving their children the highest possible education than they are to work them as farm hands and profit-making laborers.

But inasmuch as many of our laws which are designed to protect urban workers and which prohibit child labor are not applicable to agriculture, a greater responsibility is thrown upon parents engaged in agriculture to protect their children and not lose sight of the humanities, the frailties, the limited powers of endurance of young boys and girls, and to remember that their proper physical development and mental outlook on life necessitate hours of play and recreation; that their bodies and minds will be stunted by long hours of work and no play. It is still true that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.

This is not to say that farm boys and girls should not be required to assist in the work of the farm, they should. Doing chores is part of their education and preparation for life, and it would be both foolish and wrong to do for them what they should do for themselves, or permit the development of habits of idleness or shiftlessness. But inasmuch as definite laws for their protection from what may be termed exploitation do not apply in rural as in urban life, it is all the more necessary that rural people guard against selfishness and thoughtlessness on their own part in the matter of overworking children on the farm.

Canada stands high in the matter of child labor. It is a matter of national pride that this is so. We stand high in the matter of education, and our school attendance laws afford the greatest legal protection against the exploitation of child labor, both in city and country. It should be the aim of the Canadian people as individual citizens to raise the standard of child life progressively higher as the years go by, and entirely eliminate the blot of commercialized child labor from this fair Dominion.

Live "Dragons" At Zoo

Habitants Of Dutch East Indies Taken To London

There were live dragons in King George's Silver Jubilee celebrations, but they did not take part in the procession.

There was a pair of them and they were seen for the first time by the public at the zoo.

Komodo dragon is their full name, though learned people speak of them as monitor lizards. They came from Komodo Island in the Dutch East Indies, whence they were brought by Lord Moyne, who has been there studying their habits in the wild state. Some of the animals in their native habitat are 12 feet long, and their nearly-related, extinct Australian species grew to 50 feet. And these it is that are supposed to have been the originals of the dragon legends throughout the world.

Seen travelling erect on their four legs—not crawling like the alligator—with their longish heads carried aloft and the tips of their long tails sweeping the earth, they are indeed capable of inspiring fright in the primitive mind.

The pair given to the zoo are the most interesting and valuable reptiles in this wonderful collection and some striking photographs of them in their native surroundings accompany the exhibits. They were kept in the zoo sanatorium for a few days so that the keepers might study their habits, and were then put on view for the first time on the King's Jubilee Day.

A Magnificent Statue

Cleaning Revealed Effigy Of Black Prince Is Pure Gold

The Black Prince—or at least his statue—is no longer black.

For centuries the statue over his tomb in Canterbury Cathedral has been as black as his name. It was never cleaned.

Then, about a month ago, it was. Centuries of grime and a coating of protective enamel were delicately removed under the direction of Professor W. W. Tristram.

A most beautifully wrought effigy in pure gold on a foundation of bronze was revealed. It is in almost perfect preservation and is one of the most wonderful examples of fourteenth-century craftsmanship in existence. The tomb was built 550 years ago.

"The most magnificent tomb in England," is Professor Tristram's description.

"We clean the cathedral regularly," the Dean of Canterbury said, "but for some reason, I really don't know why, it never occurred to anybody to clean the Black Prince. Now that we have done so everybody is delighted, and we are having a great many visitors. The tomb is one of the most lovely monuments in the world. Its value is incalculable."

Gasoline Discovered

Unable To Explain Gasoline Reservoir Near Earth's Surface

A huge underground lake of pure gasoline was discovered in the harbor district near Wilmington, California, causing hundreds of persons to stampede to the scene.

Shallow wells, most of them dug to a depth of only two feet, were producing from four to six gallons of gasoline an hour.

The scene, a low area about two blocks square, was dotted with hundreds of gasoline "prospectors", some of whom brought hand pumps to speed up production. Motorists filled the tanks of their automobiles and trucks.

Fire Chief Ralph Scott, at a loss to account for the gasoline reservoir beneath the earth's surface, said, however, it probably came from a leak many years ago in a pipe line leading from a refinery to a harbor terminal.

A Great Salesman

The greatest salesman of the Empire is the Prince of Wales! On a hot day, once, according to Lord Dudley, he talked in Rio de Janeiro for more than an hour. As a result British iron and steel industries received an order for a $15,000,000 contract. Lord Dudley told the story at a meeting of the Iron and Steel Federation of which he is president.

Russia Making Rubber

Oil Waste And Calcium Used In New Process

New processes for making synthetic rubber out of the waste products of oil refineries and from calcium carbide are being tried out in Russia.

Heads of the Soviet industrial syndicates expect shortly to be manufacturing the product at the rate of 20,000 tons a year.

This will have far-reaching effects on the rubber-growing plantations of the Far East, and will upset considerably the working of the Rubber Restriction Scheme, under which 30 per cent. of the trees are not being tapped so as to force up raw rubber prices.

The first factory for manufacturing rubber from oil waste is now being started in Moscow. The lessons learned there will be applied in the construction of several large plants in the oil well districts.

About 35 pounds of rubber are produced from the waste products obtained from refining a ton of oil. In the past these products in many cases had to be wasted.

The other process, for manufacturing rubber from calcium carbide, is to be operated at Erivan, in Armenia, where a factory is now being constructed. The process is the invention of a number of young Soviet scientists working in Leningrad.

Water is added to the calcium carbide, forming acetylene, the gas of which is often used for lighting. Then, after a series of chemical reactions, a substance called chloroprene is produced and thus ultimately becomes rubber.

The rubber is said to have all the working and wearing qualities of real rubber, and to be very much cheaper.

Best Aid To Sleep

Formula For The Perfect Night-Cap Has Been Evolved

It is generally recognized that the best aid to sleep is warm milk; and that the main use of all night-caps is not as a soporific but as a means of removing from hot milk the unpalatable taste which prevents so many people from drinking it regularly at night. Since tea is the cheapest beverage in the world, and the one that is in every family cupboard, its use in this connection is highly desirable. A formula for the perfect milk night-cap has now been evolved. Tea should be made in the usual way, which means that one teaspoonful of leaf should be allowed for each person and one for the pot. The pot should only be filled half way, and when pouring out after the usual four to five minutes infusion, the cups should be only half filled. They should then be filled up with hot milk, but not with boiled milk.

Twenty-two million cups of tea are drunk in Canada every day or over eight billion cups of tea a year. The tea industry is therefore one of the farmer's greatest allies, for investigation has shown that the number of people who drink tea without milk is almost negligible.

Welcome Heavy Rain

Australians Glad To See "Knock 'Em Down" Variety

Darwin, Northern Australia, recently welcomed the annual "knock 'em down" rains.

Although this aboriginal description of the torrential downpours, which herald the end of the wet season, sounds grim, the rains are very welcome throughout the Northern Territory. These heavy downpours towards the end of the monsoon period level the long grass which earlier falls have caused to grow to a height of six to ten feet.

In the three months following Christmas, about 40 inches of rain fell in Darwin, and the grass bordering the roads was so high that a man driving along the road could not see a friend walking along the footpath. In low-lying sections of the city grass grew in a tangled mass ten feet high. That is why "knock 'em down" rains are welcome.

Construction of the Canton-Hankow railway in China is progressing so rapidly that the line may be in operation this year.

An Old Organization

First Holstein Society Started In Germany In 1872

Cattle resembling the present-day Holstein have been bred for centuries along the south shore of the North Sea, from Holland over to Denmark. Some of the early importations into the United States came from the German province of Holstein, just south of Denmark and a breed society of that name was started in 1872. But most of the early importations came from Friesland and the country in Holland bordering on the Zuider Zee and a Dutch-Friesian Society was started in the States in 1879. These two merged in 1885 with the name of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America. Although the most of the foundation stock of the breed came from Friesland the name has stuck, the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada having been formed in 1891.

Thus before they slept that night, the two young people knew that they were to go "out West". The arguments pro and con had waged for a good two hours, Aunt Louise protesting vigorously to the very last that her nephew would return East with the manners "of a bear."

"And I warn you too, young man," she asserted grimly, "that you won't find life on a ranch the romantic dream you're picturing to yourself at present. As for your sister—"

At this point words failed her and she ended with a tragic gesture which caused even Nance to smile a little. There was no doubt whatever that Aunt Louise could perceive no virtue in what she termed "this wild, ridiculous scheme of Jack's"; and even Aunt Judy suggested with some reluctance that if the boy must go, it might be wise for him to go alone.

"All right," he retorted, impatient at what seemed a deadlock, "if Sis is too much of a hot-house flower to stand transplanting—if she can't put up with a few hardships a time like this, I will go alone, though possibly—"

He hesitated, and his father ended for him: "You're thinking that it's Nance whom Cousin Columbine really wants to come?"

Jack nodded.

"She might not pay my carfare if I went alone, Dad."

"So if you go, it looks as if I'd have to," said the girl bitterly. "I suppose if I get unbearably fed up with everything I can walk back."

"Two thousand miles on the hoof!" grinned her brother, though perfectly aware that she spoke with sarcasm. "That's where your pioneer blood shows up, my dear! If you find our aged relative too impossible you can turn hitch-hiker. See here! I promise solemnly that if you can't stand the job after a month or two, we'll hitch-hike back together. The experiment won't cost Dad a cent; and the chances are we'll have a whale of a good time."

"Good time!" sputtered his paternal aunt; when Mother interrupted: "But, Louise, can you see any especially good times for the children if they stay at home?"

Every one turned to her in surprise; while Aunt Louise responded: "Surely, Margaret, you don't approve of this idea?"

"Not wholly; but I've a feeling that both Jack and Nancy will be happier in absolutely new surroundings for a time. It's not easy for young folks to adjust themselves to such radical changes as we'll have to make. Of course I shall worry about Nance; but if she's too unhappy I think we can manage to bring her back without the necessity of hitch-hiking! What do you say, Nance?"

It was then that Nancy, glancing at her father as if for help, saw something in his face that made her heart contract. For the first time she realized what this catastrophe had done to Dad. Why, he looked old! she thought in consternation. He looked worried—frightfully worried; and all this talk was worrying him still more. Yet here she was hesitating to accept a chance to earn her living just because the thought of doing something hard—going so far away, seemed unendurable. What had Jack called her the other night? A parlor ornament? Well, he was right, wasn't he? That's about all she measured up to. For one swift, illuminating moment the girl saw herself as others saw her, and was honestly appalled. Dad would never admit it, but her absence and Jack's would be a help just now. All this and more went through her mind in a revealing flash before she answered with new-born bravery.

"Of course I'm going! I had to get used to the idea, that's all. It may not be very exciting at Cousin Columbine's, Mother, but it'll be—be interesting, won't it—seeing new things and places? Let's not talk any more. It's settled as far as I'm concerned. Come on, Jack, we'd better make a list of things to take."

"And don't forget your flannel nightgowns," spoke up the little brother; so, after all, the discussion ended on a smile.

CHAPTER V.

Waking suddenly at a nerve-racking jolt, Nancy sat up, wondering in that first startled instant, where she could be. Then her brain cleared and she realized that she was aboard a train headed for Colorado, and wondered if they had run into something, and if she ought to waken Jack or get up and put on her clothes. Surely there had been no such jolt the night before. For a moment she listened tensely in expectation of some confusion; then raised the window shade, peering out into the dim, grey light of early morning.

The train had stopped before a station and her car was directly opposite the brightly lighted restaurant. Nancy could see a girl of about her own age dressed in a crisp, white uniform, serving some trainmen at a lunch counter. She wondered if the waitress had been up all night or was just beginning her day's work. Probably the latter, for she looked fresh enough—but what a ghastly hour to go to work.

A man and woman carrying suitcases emerged from the waiting room, and a moment later Nance felt them brush by her section, speaking to the porter in hushed voices. A cheerful time to be starting on a journey, she thought ironically, but perhaps out here where the distances were so great, one had to start when one could.

There followed another jolt. Evidently the engine had been detached and was coupling on again. The wheels turned slowly, and then faster. Nance strained her eyes to catch the name of the station—Dodge City—and shivering a little, pulled down the shade and snuggled under the blankets.

So they were still in Kansas. Kansas! The idea that she could be there was incredible to Nancy Nelson. Why, Kansas had always seemed as far away as the North Pole—and fully as unattractive! People

"WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT SASKASAL"

Indigestion Gone, Can Eat Anything

Read this letter: "For several years I had been troubled with indigestion and could eat very few foods which agreed with me. A friend of mine suggested that I try Saskasal, which I did, and it has entirely cured me and now I can eat anything. I would not be without a bottle of Saskasal in my home, and I hope others may benefit as I have done when they know of your wonderful remedy in Saskasal." Saskasal is Nature's own Mineral Salts. lived there, of course, but not people quite like themselves. At least, that was how the girl had thought about it; yet that waitress in the lunch room looked—why she looked every bit as up-to-date as the girls behind the lunch counters at Thompson's Spa on Washington Street in Boston.

This comparison brought a wave of homesickness to the unwilling exile. What a three weeks it had been since Jack received those telegrams from Cousin Columbine! Such a hectic time. Aunt Judy starting off for Europe with those crazy Spear girls. Hurried trips to Edgemere with Mother. Packing. Deciding what to take and what to leave behind. Getting tickets and reservations. And those last awful moments at the South Station with Phil wanting to know how they made the sections into beds and asking a thousand foolish questions—Mother smiling unnaturally to keep from crying—Aunt Louise arriving at almost the last second with a box of candy, and Dad, his face so terribly set and stern. . . .

Just to recall it made Nance shudder. Even Jack had lost his enthusiasm for a time and hadn't talked much until the train left Worcester. But a meal in the diner had restored his courage, and since then he'd been the jolliest of companions. She hadn't realized before how nice her brother really was. Not once had he compared her to a hothouse flower or a parlor ornament. Not even when he caught her winking away some tears as the train pulled out. . . .

Nancy slept after a while, but not for long. It was Jack who awakened her, slipping down from the upper berth and snapping up the window shade.

"Wake up, sis!" he commanded in an excited whisper. "Look where we are! Why, that's—that must be prairie!"

It was! Nancy sat up, almost as excited as her brother. Prairie! Miles and miles and miles of it, stretching endlessly into a far horizon. Neither of them had dimly realized the vastness of those great plains they were to cross—plains which lay dappled by morning sunlight, softly undulating, as far as their astonished eyes could reach.

For the first time since starting on this journey, Nancy forgot her homesickness and was thrilled. She drew a breath born of both amazement and delight. To one whose entire life had been spent either in a crowded city or surrounded by the sheltering, green hills of New England, such limitless space was almost unbelievable. For a time she watched this unfamiliar world slip by, too awed for anything save exclamations. It all seemed wonderful: a herd of grazing cattle—a clump of cottonwoods beside an irrigating ditch—a schoolhouse set in curious isolation considering its purpose; and in the distance patches of green about some lonely ranch.

Even Jack was silent, too interested, perhaps, to comment; but at last he said: "Let's dress, Nancy. I want to get out and sniff this air at the next station. Breakfast at Syracuse anyhow, and say! I think the sun looks brighter here than it does at home."

This was no idle guess. The sun was brighter—the air more sparkling. Nancy admitted that she had never breathed such air. They cut short their breakfast in order to have more moments to pace the platform. "And in no time now," said Jack as they swung reluctantly aboard the train again, "we'll be in Colorado. I wonder who Cousin Columbine will send to meet us."

Nance smiled.

"Do you remember her first letter? I was to sit quietly in the station until called for!"

"So you were! Do you suppose they'll keep up waiting long? Gee, Nance! I just can't realize that this long trip is nearly over."

Neither could Nance; but all too soon they found themselves waiting their turn to leave the train. Good-byes to friendly fellow passengers had been spoken. A smiling porter had brushed away the cinders. Nancy, standing behind Jack in the narrow passage, realized suddenly that the hands clutching her pocket-book were trembling. Indeed, all the fear that had gripped her on leaving home was back again as she emerged into the sunlight and joined her brother on the platform.

Jack, smiling a negative to an approaching red cap, rescued their bags from a pile of luggage, and moved toward the station—a beautiful station that made Nance think of an English manor house. To the west, against an unbelievably blue sky, towered snow-capped Pike's Peak, seeming so near in the clear atmosphere, that the girl felt she could reach out and touch it.

"This place certainly looks civilized enough," she observed breathlessly as Jack dropped the bags and stood looking about in search of the expected escort.

"Civilized!" Her brother laughed. "What did you think you'd see? Wild Indians? Of course it's civilized; but—for the love o' Mike, Nance, look there!"

Nance looked. An Indian squaw was coming toward them, her shoulders covered by a gay, striped shawl, a wee black-eyed papoose strapped to her back. Said Jack, as she disappeared around a corner: "That relic of old times must have been ordered for our especial benefit. I

Little Helps For This Week

"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Matthew 19:19.

So others shall

Take patience, labor to their heart and hand,
From thy hand, and thy heart, and thy brave cheer,
And God's grace magnify through thee to all.
The least flower with a brimming cup may stand,
And share its dewdrop with another near.

What is meant by our neighbor we cannot doubt, it is everyone with whom we are brought into contact. First of all he is literally our neighbor who is next to us in our own family and household. Then it is he who is close to us in our own neighborhood, our own town, in our own street. With these all charity begins. To love and be kind to these is the beginning of all true religion. But besides these, as our Lord teaches, is the one who is thrown across our path by the changes and chances of life, he or she whosever it be that we have means of helping, the unfortunate stranger we may meet in travelling, the friend whom no one else cares to look after.

Didsbury 4 Lone Pine 3

An error in the seventh inning that enabled Ward Wyman to score gave Didsbury baseball team a 4-3 win over the snappy Lone Pine crew in a Dominion day game that was hardfought and well played throughout. The eastern team stepped out with two runs in the first inning when Denis Jenkins and Sawyer both singled safely and scored on Clark's double to deep centre. It was a wobbly start for Edgar Pearson but he tightened up from then on and went the full route for the locals, turning in a very creditable performance on the mound. He allowed only one hit after the first inning, young Clark getting a single. Denis Jenkins ended the scoring for the visitors when he got to second on two errors, stole second and romped home on Eckel's sacrifice.

Didsbury tied the game in their half of the first when Berscht singled and scored on a 3-bagger by Herchek, who in turn scored on a single by Pearson. Eckel was yanked and Jenkins went to the box for Lone Pine and held the locals to three scattered hits until the sixth canto when he walked Tuggle, who scored on Berscht's drive.

This is the second game between these teams, the first occasion seeing the local nine take an awful shellacking. Fans are anxious now to see the rubber game, and if it is played a real game is assured.

Unique Prize.

Some of the local merchants have joined forces to promote a popularity contest for Didsbury and district and are offering as a prize a beautiful $200.00 bedroom suite, which is now on display in Ranton's store. The contest is now in full swing and will close midnight, Oct. 12, 1935.

In another part of this paper you will see the advertisement with the list of the merchants participating.

During the contest each merchant will give voting coupons with each cash purchase made in his store or place of business. These coupons are issued on the basis of one vote for each cent spent. In other words - 10 votes for 10 cents, 100 votes for one dollar - with a 100.00 limit. For instance, if a person purchases a stove from Mac's Hardware - value, $150.00 - $100.00 worth of votes can be issued.

Get all your friends to deal with these merchants and save the votes for you. Then drop them weekly into the ballot box at Chambers' Drug Store and look for your name in this paper. Whenever possible, tie votes in bundles to save sorting.

J W Halton has been appointed official scorer and has charge of all records, which are always open to inspection.

Here is a wonderful prize that will go to some lucky Didsbury lady. See it as soon as possible at Ranton's and then get busy getting votes.

Next week "The Pioneer" will make a special offer so watch the paper for all details.

Remember the competition is open to everyone and there is no entry fee. It's free.

Legion Field Day.

Although the weather was fine, the bad condition of the roads kept many from attending the Legion Sports on Monday and there was only a fair crowd.

The proceedings opened with a parade led by the Boys' Band, and softball and races comprised the programme at the grounds.

The midway proved a big attraction and each booth seemed to be doing a big business.

The Boys' Band rendered selections throughout the afternoon.
